Basic First Aid & Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) Training for Electrical Competent Persons (With Valid First Aid Certificate for 2 Years)

TRAINING ID: MJA/ELEC/2020/003

1.0 INTRODUCTION

First aid involves timely response to emergencies and immediate care of sick and injured people. Trained first aiders apply a range of procedures and techniques that offer care when accidents and injuries occur, often making the difference between life and death during high-risk, low-frequency emergencies. More than ever, first aid intervention is a valuable link in the life saving chain, where casualties are addressed and monitored prior to the arrival of emergency services personnel. The potential for first aid to save lives has improved dramatically during recent years. Procedures of first aid including Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) for assisting unfortunate victims will also be thought in this 2 days training.

Basic principles of first aid includes, safe response to emergencies for the benefit of casualties, bystanders and rescuers, securing the emergency site to reduce further harm to the casualty, using appropriate first aid procedures and techniques, safely moving the casualty, minimizing pain and helping stabilize the condition, providing reassurance and guidance to the casualty, communication with bystanders and emergency services personnel and acting in accord with first aid protocol and workplace guidelines.
